List one way you will apply something gained from this training next week in your program:

We will add more technology when we build.

Having the PowerPoint emailed to me would be great.

Learning more about the Kansas Early Learning Standards.

Talking to the children while they are building.

Be a more intentional teacher, STEAM.

New ideas for activities and different technology uses.

Starting a garden!

Give my families more info to support learning.

Being more organized and do more talking when doing hands on activities.

The paste & the rearrange my daycare to add new ideas from the class.

Comments:

Amazing info.

Susan Drewlow

List one way you will apply something gained from this training next week in your program:

Take more time to do a discovery bottle instead of making it ahead of time.

I like all the experiments she did and will try all of them.

Color mixing bottles.

I will get an egg in a bottle.

Be creative & ask the right type of questions.

I'm going to try egg in a bottle.

Making the experience boxes/discovery bottles.

Love the ideas, love the boxed sea shells idea.

I love the different ways to use the bottles with water & the gas.

More hands on science experiments with kids.

Try some experiments.

Better use of terms with the children in my classroom.

Don't get caught up in the experiment and forget to enjoy the experience.

ABC arc.

A better format for our daily routine.

Letter recognition.

Sounding out the words.

Getting some letters & working on phonic awareness.

Help kids with letter sounds with different activities.

Saying a word and letting the children identify the sound.

Nope.

Rhyme more.

Reading Readiness (Continued)

Comments:

Pretty dry.

Presenter was very knowledgeable but very dry.

A handout of the slides would have been very helpful.

Started out slow wanted more examples but overall good.

This was fun!

Projection was hard to read on a patterned wall.

Handout to follow along with would have been nice. Instead of being told I used this book & it is at the vendor so go down there and buy it for $35 and you can order it. Not impressed at all. A lot of information but just not workable. A lot to remember without handout. Ran through slides very fast, couldn't write down information at all. Totally lost.

Didn't realize this was going to focus on a reading curriculum. I already use Zoophonics. Felt like it was an advertisement.

Keynote Address

Ellen Booth Church

List one way you will apply something gained from this training next week in your program:

The songs.

Would be fine if I haven't already heard this, we already do this.

By taking some ideas she stated and try them.

Saying "What do you think?" when asked why.

Encourage more open-ended questions.

Let kids know that it's ok to mess up and to have fun. Make it fun to learn; kids get turned off so easy.

Less technology in learning and open opportunities to think about stuff out of the ordinary.

Be more mindful of how I converse with toddlers. Don't worry so much about "testing." Try salad spinner art and itsy bitsy spider.

Always thinking outside the box.

Share information with parents.

Use the songs and write some of her quotes around my room for myself to remember.

I will sing the songs she shared with my children.

Songs & examples.

Sing my hand says "hello." "What do you think?"

"My hands" song.

Challenge them to use their minds in creative ways.

Nurturing Next Generation Innovators (Continued)

Keynote Address

Ellen Booth Church

List one way you will apply something gained from this training next week in your program:

Share more with parents about the importance of play.

Start out with singing, think when they say why, you say "What do you think?"

Similar/difference.

Finger movements build memory.

Ask kids questions about things.

Encourage parents to use less technology with young children.

Use open ended questions.

What to tell parents why I do play based.

Information to give parents.

Learning early isn't better.

To not push children to know so much or do so much at an early age.

Ask more open ended questions, fingerplays.

I loved info that supports what I already do!! Brain info!

I will start comparing things with the kids: similar, etc.

Ask more open ended questions, compare things. Talk in voices!

Incorporate more singing & communication.

Start thinking like the kids to relate to them more.

More finger plays and singing.

Same & different.

List one way you will apply something gained from this training next week in your program:

We'll educate the mind & the heart.

Will look up her books. Will implement some quotes in my handbook.

I'm going to look up group time articles she referenced.

Use open questions; ask child what do you think? Importance of 2,000 days in brain development.

Thinking and being more intentional about how I talk to kids. How to get them thinking.

List one way you will apply something gained from this training next week in your program:

Will try to change the way I respond or ask questions.

To stop repeating ask once then apply.

We already practice these in our daycare.

Use "Who got it out?" not "Who had it first?"

Managing interruptions, changing the way you ask.

Thank you comes from the heart. Where does the truck belong and can you show me where it goes?

I love the list great ways to interact with a child.

Options: heat of the moment.

Change the way I say things, make it more positive.

Use a quieter voice and only say something once.

Learned tons of new phrases to correct behavior.

Dropping ok.

Comments:

Super cute couple; had some microphone issues but great.

Reading Readiness for Tomorrow's Future (Continued)

Tyronica Burks

List one way you will apply something gained from this training next week in your program:

Signing up with the book club.

Thank you for telling me about the Dolly Parton imagination library.

Continue daily reading.

Emphasize importance of reading to my parents!

More reading and incorporating into everyday things.

Comments:

Tyronica did not present; LaFarris did. 45 minutes of the class was group work talking about how we use reading as adults. No activities were suggested to teach reading skills to children.

Thanks, great job!

Well done! Enjoyable!

Super fun.

List one way you will apply something gained from this training next week in your program:

Do more activities.

Resource list with parents of your wish list.

Go through my recycle bin.

Magnet words.

Make more things for kids to play with.

See what I can use different things for.

Lots of new ideas to use my stash of stuff.

Save some things to reuse.

Comments:

Thank you!

Went over a lot of materials however not real interactive.

Great ideas.

Great ideas!!!
